SEWING DOLL RAGS BIG HANDICAP TO SCHOOL ATHLETES

It Would Be Far More Beneficial to Have Youngsters Spend Their Time on an Athletic Field.

THE Fellow Above Board who pins things via Facetious Goggles had a Two Minute Talk with a New Yorker. It went something like this: "I was sitting at home for a change, discussing a fine perfect, when Bill, Jr., came in to say good-night. 'Hello, Bill,' I said. 'How are you getting along in school?' 'All right,' he said. 'Teacher said my sewing to-day was fine.' 'Sewing?' I cried. 'Do they teach you sewing?' 'Why of course they do,' said his mother. Now, what d'ye think o' that?'"

"What I think of it is not fit for publication," said P. J. Conway, President of the Irish-American Athletic Club. "I'll be a happy man if my son comes home and says to me, 'Here, father, see what a fine dollie I made in school.' Perhaps the wise fathers of the school system are teaching the young-uns how 'a stitch in time saves nine' after the old saying.

"As a happy father I want to say that I would a lot rather have my son come home and say to me, 'Here, father, see how I skinned my shin playing football at school to-day.' "I believe it is a waste of time teaching the boys of New York how to sew. If I had my way they would spend about half their time on the athletic field, where they could develop their bodies as well as their minds. The much time cannot be given to athletics.

"The Schoolboys' Athletic League has done inconceivable good. It has made the youngsters take care of themselves in the hope of reaching physical perfection. The boys in that league are the finest lot you can find anywhere in the world.

"Boys should be taken in hand while they are growing. An expert should be employed to tell them what nutritious exercise they require, or are best fitted for. If this was done, the rising generation would be infinitely superior in physique. Think of the number of puny youths who could be developed into strong young men. What becomes of them now? They overtax their minds and destroy what little strength they have.

"If the physical body is strong, the mental body will take care of itself, and if the physical body is weak, the mind is in no condition to receive any learning. Physical training will make the body strong and the mind receptive. And one thing is certain: If boys are taught that physical perfection is to be their goal, they will not be tempted by the vices and dissipation of youth."

He Is After "Heavies" RODENBACH IS THE MAN TO FILL JEFFRIES' SHOES SAYS McGRATH

Amateur Champion Has Turned Professional, Now Watch the Heavies Get Under Cover.

Billy Rodenbach, the peerless amateur, has turned professional. So says Tim McGrath. This news will cast a bombshell into the camp of the near-champions who have been clamoring after the title abandoned by Jeffries. Rodenbach is a fighter, yet he'll be somewhat of a midget, heavy-weight, but he is a veritable Hercules, just the same, and has a sleep-producing punch. He is a Corbett-with-a-little-of-the-top-a-McCor in the kid's heyday. In fact, he combines all the fine qualities of both the speed and genius of Corbett and the skill and hitting power of McCor.

To the Sporting Editor of The Evening World: I herewith submit to you this news item. I am managing William Rodenbach, the world's heavy-weight amateur champion, who will enter the professional arena and mix with the best of the lot now before the public. I handed Rodenbach when he cleverly defeated Sam Berger in four rounds out in San Francisco, and I know he is the man to fill Jeffries' seat. He is in excellent shape right now and is a young man with the best of habits. And he knows how to fight.

Now let the clubs dig up a live opponent for my man. We certainly have lemons. Sincerely yours, TIM McGRATH.

CUE EXPERTS DISAGREE

Maurice Daly Says the Only Game Is at 18.1 Balkline.

proceeded to demonstrate. He placed the three balls in the side rail about two inches apart, and the first one about one inch from the end rail, standing in the corner. "Now, you see," explained Jack, "that shot is an easy matter, but even after you make a beautiful shot you have a chance to get them out of balk. Therefore your shot counts for nothing and you have to sit down and let your opponent work around and make them get you out of balk or not? It's a mighty pretty shot."

Schaefer Says the Beauty of Billiards Is Playing Position as in 18.2

get around it. In 18.2 the player has one shot to get in position, and if he does not get in position on his second shot, it's his fault. In 18.1 he has to take what his opponent leaves him. The discussion ended in a draw. Schaefer insists that 18.2 is the game and Maurice Daly sticks to 18.1. "New York followers of the game will have a good chance to decide for themselves next week as Schaefer plays Hoppe for the 18.1 championship and on the following night Hoppe and Sutton meet to decide the title at 18.2."

SHED TEARS AS HER FINE MARE WAS SOLD.

Eugenia Burch, a six-year-old mare and a famous performer on the turf, was led into the sales ring at Belmont Park this afternoon. Among the people gathered there was Mrs. J. CURTIS, the owner of the mare.

As the auctioneer expatiated on the virtues of the mare, Mrs. Curtis was profoundly moved. Then the bidding increased Mrs. Curtis's emotions. Finally the mare was knocked down to Henry Payne Whitney for $300, and as Mrs. Curtis uttered a cry and burst into tears, sobbing violently, Mrs. Curtis was led away from the sales ring.

Mrs. Curtis was very fond of Eugenia Burch and it was only when the mare's sale was announced that she decided to offer her at all. Mrs. Curtis had presented Eugenia Burch for sale to the auctioneer's hands.

BICYCLE THROWS BOY UNDER WAGON WHEELS.

Lad Returning Home from School Dies from Injuries Received in Double Accident. Harry Gieseler, a ten-year-old school boy living at No. 16 East Eighty-fifth street, died in the Presbyterian Hospital this afternoon from injuries he received while on his way home to school today, when a bicyclist and a wagon ran over him.

The boy attended Public School No. 26, in East Eighty-second street, and walked home at noon on Third avenue. He was crossing Eighty-fourth street, when a bicyclist, ridden by Philip Stahl, struck him. The force of the collision threw him directly under the wheels of a heavy delivery wagon, driven by Bernard Smith. Before the driver could pull up his team the wheels had passed over the boy, injuring him so severely that he died almost as soon as an ambulance reached the Presbyterian Hospital. Stahl and Smith were arrested in the afternoon on charges of manslaughter.
